Roasters rack up 26 Golden Bean medals with coffees from Gold Mountain Coffee Growers:

[SUCCESS STORY]

Golden Bean North America & Australia are proud to announce that roasters won 26 medals with coffee from direct trade social enterprise Gold Mountain Coffee Growers of Nicaragua in the 2019 Golden Bean competition in North America!

We're highlighting Gold Mountain Coffee Growers as an example of how roasters can use high-cupping coffee to make a positive impact at origin through direct trade relationships.

The staff of Gold Mountain Coffee Growers are present on every partner-producer farm during picking, to verify the quality and traceability of every bean that reaches a roaster, using tools such as refractometers and ripeness bracelets to ensure perfect picking. Their Q Grader cups every lot by farmer, parcel, variety, and day of picking.

They're treating coffee growing like fine wine vineyards. Notably, no partner-producer will pick their coffee if Gold Mountain's quality control staff isn't standing on the farm with a refractometer and ripeness bracelet.

Once the coffee is picked, workers at conveyor belts still bring the coffee to competition-levels of perfection. This amount of dedication is why roasters have won so many Golden Bean medals using their coffees.

Gold Mountain Coffee Growers knows about coffee quality because they have their own award-winning farm in Nicaragua, Finca Idealista.

As if that work on quality weren't enough, Gold Mountain Coffee Growers bought a rainforest to protect it, gives free computing classes to girls from coffee communities, and supports farmers through access to credit, their living seed bank, and technical advice.

Adam Paronto of Reprise Coffee Roasters in Winnetka, Illinois said: "We've never seen a farming group with so many excellent coffees. Our customers appreciate that with these coffees, we are building a palatable world and making ethical purchasing decisions."

We literally win medals every year with these coffees and change our customers' conception of how incredible coffee can taste."
